

Place, Space, Action

Market Gallery

This exhibition brings together artists and designers from the Department of Art and Communication in the School of Art, Design and Architecture, to explore the themes 'place' 'space' and 'action'. Each piece on display presents stories, experiences and imaginary interactions with these broad and sometimes loaded terms. You will find responses that engage directly with the architectural structure of the market itself, some that explore the mental space of histories and memories, others that dialogue with different stimuli ranging from open landscapes and urban sprawls, through to architectural interiors and the intimacies of thinking in studio environments.

Considering different ways of experiencing what is around us, in and through the practice of making, has been part of the process of activating this exhibition space. The work covers a broad range of media including painting, illustration, photography, digital design, sculpture and video work.
